

Courtney Love takes ten years off with cosmetic surgery

Courtney Love looked at least a decade younger than her 47 years when she performed at a concert in Poland last month – and now I can reveal why.

The singer has been paying visits to a Manhattan plastic surgeon who has been performing a new form of cosmetic surgery called the stem cell facelift, in which a patient's complexion is revamped using their own grafted fat tissue.

The treatment, which lasts five years, plumps up and tightens the skin and stops the neck from sagging.

'Courtney looks better than ever,' says a pal.

'She's been making visits to Dr Sam Rizk's office on Park Avenue. It's the gold standard of facial rejuvenation.'
